

“Seeking and Embracing God’s Plan”

The prophet Jeremiah speaks for God and assures the faithful that God has a plan for all God’s people. He calls it, “a future with hope.” But God doesn’t simply hand His church a blueprint for the future, with all the details. God’s plan is revealed through prayer, study of Scripture and through faithful conversations with one another.

The leadership of Lutheran Church of Our Redeemer is requesting your help in determining God’s future for the congregation. In so doing, we ask questions like the following:

- Where is God leading Lutheran Church of Our Redeemer?
- What are the gifts God has given this congregation and what are the needs of the people, i.e. mission?
- What kind of a ministry does God want for us in 3 or 5 or 10 years?

We will contract with a professional who is highly experienced in working with churches to help them learn their unique God-given mission. The process for arriving at our strategic plan will include: 5 to 7 members of LCOOR, various church leaders, and several opportunities for the entire congregation’s input.

God doesn’t change, but the way people hear and live out the Gospel do. Thus, as a congregation, we must continually be evaluating the ever-changing landscape of life and seek God’s leading in new ways of telling the story of Jesus.

This step chart displays two household levels of giving. The lighter numbers show how many gifts are given currently at the indicated weekly amounts. The darker, larger numbers demonstrate how many gifts are needed in these levels to reach our goal.

Look over the chart and find your level of giving. Ask yourself:

- How does my giving level compare with other ways I use my money?
- How adequately does my giving reflect my gratitude to God for all the blessings God has given me?
- Where would I be if I chose to go up one or two steps in giving? Could I afford to do this? What is God wanting from me?
